Summer Seminar 2013

Early in G.I. Gurdjieff's book, Beelzebub's Tales to his Grandson, Hasein, the grandson, suddenly becomes aware that everything that exists in the present moment was prepared for him by people in the past:

And all of this they did, either consciously or unconsciously, just for us, that is to say, for beings unknown and quite indifferent to them.

So it is for us. Just as our present moment was prepared by those who came before, it falls to us to prepare the future—that is to say, the present moment of those who will come after us.

How is this to be done? Although we must do so, it is clearly not enough to simply prepare the future by building, preserving, and improving the material world. Something more is required of us, but how are we to see this? How are we to accomplish this?

We can work to replace all negative attitudes towards the existing world by a feeling of confidence and love towards the new world which is being born, towards the still unborn child that is the future mankind.

J.G.Bennett

This year, we invite all to come and work with the ideas and methods of J.G. Bennett and G.I. Gurdjieff as we prepare the future. Read full details at the website.

Dzogchen Retreat June 7-12 in Conway, MA

In 1982, Paul Anderson, an important student of Gurdjieff, and leader/teacher of the Conway Work group, invited Chögyal Namkhai Norbu to give Dzogchen teachings to his students and assume spiritual guidance for the group.

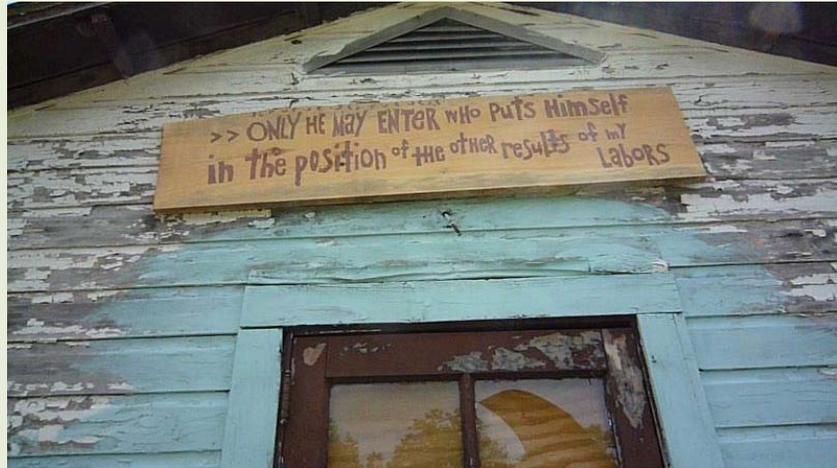

In 1983 Paul Anderson passed, and the Conway group reformed as the Dzogchen Community of America, following the profound path offered by this rare Tibetan master. You are invited to participate in the upcoming retreat.
