Listening

Summer Seminar at Camp Caravan

June 27–July 5, 2014

Royalston, Massachusetts, USA

The first requirement of a living organization is to come together, to unite. Without impatience, without intellectuality, without sentimentality, an event must take place. I need to be called and I need to call. I need to listen and hear the call, and I need to bring the call in a way that it will be received. What is needed is a conscious relation sustained by vigilance and the giving up of my ordinary will in order to work together. At a certain point there are no leaders and no followers, only those who both question and listen.

Jeanne de Salzmann

How do we find silence inside, the foundation of listening?

Can I recognize my agenda and get beyond it, to be able to listen?

How can we get out of the way, so we can listen to our higher selves?

How can we listen to that which is higher in others?

How do we listen for the truth?

Can we tune in to group listening?
